Immigration Around the World

Around the world, few want more immigration

In your opinion, should we allow more immigrants to move to our country or fewer immigrants, or about the same as we do now? (%)

Americans are in the middle of a national discussion about immigration. So are many other countries in the world. To put the American discussion in context, take a look at the chart to the left. Despite what you hear in the news, compared to the other countries listed here, the Americans are still relatively open to immigration.

I have added the percentage of residents in each country who were born in another country. The US rate of 14% is the highest it has been in 100 years, but is not the highest in the world -- see Australia (28%), Israel (25%) and Canada (22%), for example. Rates are even higher in some countries not included in this Pew survey: 51% in Bahrain, 74% in Kuwait, 75% in Qatar and 88% in United Arab Emirates.
Auld Lang Syne

Auld Lang Syne is a Scottish song, written by the poet Robert Burns. Or rather, written down by him — he had heard it from an old man and then, perhaps, added a few verses himself.

The phrase Auld Lang Syne means “Old Long Ago.” It is pronounced like this: Old Lang Zyne. Here are the words in English, in case you want to study for New Year’s Eve:

```plaintext
Should old acquaintance be forgot
And never brought to mind
Should old acquaintance be forgot and
Days of auld lang syne
     For auld lang syne my dear
     For auld lang syne
     We’ll take a cup of kindness yet
     For auld lang syne.

Don’t worry; most Americans forget the words too. Just sing La La La till the last line! Or, go the other way and impress your friends by singing the (little known) second and third verses:

```plaintext
And there’s a hand my trusty frie [friend],
And give me a hand of thine
And we’ll take a right guid-willie [drink/toast],
For auld lang syne

We two have run about the braes [hills]
And pulled the gowans [daisies] fine,
But we’ve wandered many a weary fit [foot]
Since auld lang syne.

New Year’s Eve & New Year’s Day

In the US, New Year is a time for parties and celebration. You may be invited to several different kinds of parties on New Year’s Eve (December 31) or New Year’s Day (January 1). Here are some tips for enjoying the holiday:

- You do not need to bring a gift to the host of a New Year’s Eve or New Year’s Day party.
- It is common to serve alcohol at these parties. Be careful while driving those days — even if you have not been drinking, others have been. To be safe, some people take taxis or public transportation, hire a limousine with friends, or stay at the party without drinking until their alcohol level is acceptable. Police will be out, and accident rates will be high.
- People often get very dressed up on New Year’s Eve. Ask if the party will be formal.
- At a New Year’s Eve party, strange things happen at exactly midnight, so be prepared! It is traditional to throw confetti (tiny pieces of paper) into the air, wear silly hats, blow small horns, kiss the person you came to the party with (and anyone standing nearby too), drink champagne, sing Auld Lang Syne (see Sidebar on this page) and shout “Happy New Year!” If you are uncomfortable with any of this, it is fine just to watch.
- Many people turn on the TV at midnight to watch a huge ball slide down a 77-foot pole in Times Square in New York City. The ball is five feet across and holds 180 light bulbs. The ball touches the bottom of the pole at exactly midnight (broadcast later in other time zones).
- On New Year’s Day, many Americans watch college football on TV - for example, the Rose Bowl, the Citrus Bowl and the Sugar Bowl, all played that day.
- Besides parties and football, the other tradition of New Year’s Day is to make a list of “New Year’s Resolutions.” A resolution is a promise to yourself. Many people resolve to do things like finish a long-term project, lose weight, stop smoking, or learn a new language. This is also a good chance to think about the past year. How would you like to be able to finish this sentence on January 1, 2020: “I am happy that in 2019, I __________.”
Drinking and Driving in the US

Many factors have led to a decrease over the last 20 years in the number of people in the US killed in alcohol-related car crashes and in the proportion of traffic deaths from accidents in which a driver was drinking alcohol.

In 1984, the federal government passed a law that required states to raise the minimum legal drinking age to 21 by 1988, or else lose federal money for maintaining and building highways. The raised legal drinking age clearly lowered traffic deaths of younger drivers. In 2000, a similar federal law pushed all states in the US to set a maximum blood alcohol concentration (BAC) level of .08 mg of alcohol per 100 ml of blood, or lower.

States have experimented with many kinds of rules and punishments for drinking and driving. In most states, just having a BAC over .08 while you are driving is illegal even if you are not driving recklessly, and having an open container of alcohol in a car is not allowed. In all but a few states, there are increased penalties for driving with BAC levels over .10 to .20 (differing by state). In most states, you’ll lose your license for a few months after being caught driving drunk the first time. All states have a zero tolerance law for drivers under age 21 — these laws set the maximum BAC at 0 to 0.02 for this age. And now, in all states, in some circumstances, people who have been caught driving with a high BAC must install an instrument in their cars that keeps them from starting their cars when their BAC is at or above a set point. Some states have laws that make bartenders or even private hosts legally liable if they serve drinks to someone who then drives and causes an accident. At some sports stadiums, no alcohol is served during the end phases of the games to prevent drinking and driving.

Perhaps most important, people have simply become more aware of the dangers of driving and drinking. It is now common — and socially acceptable — for groups of friends to have a “designated driver” who agrees not to drink alcohol during an evening.

Alcohol Myths

The US National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism notes that traffic fatalities are significantly higher on New Year’s Eve than on any other non-holiday winter evening. It notes the following myths and facts:

* Myth: Drinking coffee will make you sober more quickly.
  Fact: Not so. It takes time for the body to metabolize alcohol and even longer to return to normal. Time is the only cure.

* Myth: If you take aspirin and a lot of water before you go to bed, you won’t have a hangover.
  Fact: The water helps (by preventing dehydration) but the aspirin can do more harm (to your stomach) than good. Non-aspirin alternatives can be bad for an alcohol-soaked liver.

* Myth: If you eat before going to bed, the food will soak up the alcohol and prevent nausea.
  Fact: Better to eat food in the morning, especially complex carbohydrates (like cereals and bread) that replenish blood sugar and make your stomach feel better.

* Myth: An alcoholic drink in the morning will cure a hangover.
  Fact: It may feel good for a moment, but the only cure is to get all alcohol out of your system.

---

How Can I Judge My BAC?

Every person’s body metabolizes alcohol differently. For example:

- a 100-pound woman who has drunk 1½ beers within an hour will have a blood alcohol level of 0.08, the legal limit in all states.
- a 160-pound man could drink that same beer in that same time and have a level of .04.

Your blood alcohol concentration (BAC) depends on several factors:

- how much alcohol you have drunk: US beer contains 2-8% alcohol; wine has 12-14%; and hard liquor (like whisky or rum) has 40-50%. So a 12-ounce beer, a 6-ounce glass of wine, and a cocktail with 1.5 ounces of rum all contain about .6 to .7 ounces of pure alcohol.
- time: The typical person burns off about 0.02% blood alcohol/hour.
- food: Drinking on an empty stomach increases the level of driving impairment.
- your sex and body weight: for males: blood alcohol level = (#fluid ounces of pure alcohol)/(body weight x 0.13); for females: blood alcohol level = (#fluid ounces of pure alcohol)/(body weight x 0.115)

Or, go to www.onlineconversion.com/bac.htm and have the computer figure out your limits. Or, when you’re out, use one of the many smartphone apps that are available. IntelliDrink gets good reviews.
constantly advised the Negro to Many joined the boycott, refusing to ride the city buses. It was an early example of the kind of nonviolent protest King favored. At the end of the one-year boycott, the US Supreme Court decided that states could not have bus segregation laws. Today, Rosa Parks is a hero and a symbol of the Civil Rights movement.

King led two other kinds of nonviolent protests:
marches (in which thousands of people would walk quietly and peacefully from one place to another, as a way to show the power of their numbers) and sit-ins (where blacks would simply sit down in a place that was known not to serve blacks). For example, in one sit-in, four college men in North Carolina took seats in a restaurant that would not serve blacks. They sat patiently all day, but were never served.

Soon others held sit-ins in the same town.

Within days, the restaurants closed down.

Other times the protesters, including King, were arrested. King said they should be proud of this kind of civil disobedience.

As a Civil Rights leader, many thought of King as the moral leader of the US. In the last years of his life, King tried to focus attention on the economic problems of poor people of all races, and on ending the Vietnam War. Many people, black and white, were critical of him for this shift. He felt discouraged at the time he was killed.

For his use of nonviolent means for social change and for meeting hatred with love,

King won the Nobel Peace

Prize in 1964. The Civil Rights movement changed the lives and hopes of blacks in the US.

As its leader, King changed the lives of people of all races who equality.

Prepare Today for April 15, 2019 (and for April 15, 2020, Too)

If you must pay US income taxes, January is a good time to begin to prepare. If you keep good records through the year, it will not be difficult to complete the forms due on April 15 (2019, and especially 2020!). Read the tax rules now or talk with a tax counselor.

First learn if you will be considered a resident alien, nonresident alien, or have dual status (for part of the year you were resident, but nonresident the other part of the year). Resident aliens are taxed like US citizens. Different rules apply for nonresidents.

The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) is the government agency that collects federal taxes. It has many free publications that explain the rules. Find them in your Post Office or a public library, by calling 1-800-829-3676 (English or Spanish), or by going to www.irs.gov/publications. See:

Publication 515: “Withholding of Tax on Nonresident Aliens and Foreign Entities.”
Publication 519: “US Tax Guide for Aliens”
Publication 521: “Moving Expenses”

Recent changes in the US tax laws may affect whether you should itemize or take the standard deduction. Get some advice about your situation. Here are some tax points to keep in mind:

- salary, bonus, commission: Keep all pay-check stubs, but especially the final December one, which will list the whole year’s salary, taxes, and benefits.
- other income and benefits: You may have to pay tax on other non-cash benefits from your job, like stocks, retirement income, allowances, use of company car for personal use, tuition payments, etc.
- interest and dividends: Keep a record of all income you get, including any earned in another country.
- moving expenses: If you moved to a new home because of your job and if your employer did not pay for the move, you may be able to deduct some of the costs.
- child care expenses: If you paid someone to care for your child so you could have (or look for) a job, you may be able to deduct some of the costs.
- medical expenses: Keep receipts for prescription drugs, doctor and dentist bills, hospital visits, eyeglasses, and insurance payments; they may be deductible.
- taxes you paid: You can deduct state and local taxes, real estate and personal property taxes, occupational taxes, and (if you do not claim them as a tax credit) foreign income taxes.
- interest on a mortgage: If you have a mortgage, your lending organization should send you a statement at the end of the year that lists the total amount of interest you paid.
- contributions you made to non-profit organizations: If you gave money or property (like clothes, toys, appliances) to a non-profit organization (like an arts organization or school), you may be able to deduct this amount. Try to get a receipt for what you give. If you cannot get one (for example, if you left clothes at a donation center), keep a regular written account of these gifts. Gifts to non-US organizations are not deductible but you may be able to deduct gifts to US organizations that transfer funds to a charitable foreign organization.
- casualty or theft losses: If something is stolen from you (theft loss) or you lose something through a fire, car accident, or a flood, you can deduct the value if it was not paid for by insurance.
- job and other miscellaneous expenses: You may be able to deduct “job and other miscellaneous expenses” like union dues, uniforms, costs of business travel (tolls, meals, hotel, business meals, entertainment and gifts). These job expenses require detailed records. Read the rules now or talk to an accountant or tax advisor now.
Yikes. What a time they are having in Washington, DC. No, this is not how it always is in the United States... Here is some background to a few of the stories:

Over the years, the US has passed many campaign finance laws designed to regulate how money can be legally spent during an election. There are limits to how much money an individual person can contribute to a candidate ($2700). However, some kinds of groups (for example, Political Action Committees - PACs) can spend larger amounts of money to support ideas (like “health care reform” or “border security”) or one of the national political parties, as long as they function independently of any political candidate. They are not allowed to coordinate the timing or placement of ads with those of a candidate’s campaign. The Trump campaign is being investigated for possible violation of this rule.

Another campaign finance law makes it illegal for foreign nationals (except green card holders) to donate money to elections. Did Russian nationals somehow break this rule? That is being looked into.

And yet another law requires campaigns to report their continued on page 7

Benjamin Franklin was born in Boston on January 17, 1706. He lived 84 years, years that saw the American colonies become independent from England. He deeply influenced US political, educational, scientific, military and moral systems. In today’s age of specialists, his breadth and depth seem especially impressive. Specifically:

- As a young man, he experimented with electricity and demonstrated the concept of positive and negative electrical charges. A famous story tells of Franklin flying a kite (with a key attached to the string) during a lightning storm and "discovering" electricity. He may have flown such a kite, but electricity was known (though not well understood) before that storm. He also invented a heating stove (still called a Franklin stove today), bifocal eyeglasses, and an odometer for his carriage.

- Before the American Revolution, he was Philadelphia’s postmaster. In this role, he set up a unified system of mail delivery (including the first home delivery) from colony to colony. He also arranged for Philadelphia to develop a defense system. In these ways, he helped lay the foundation for a coordinated United States.

- He became one of the most important founders of the new United States. During and after the Revolution he was an important diplomat, especially to England and France. After signing the peace treaty that ended the Revolution, he wrote, "We are now friends with England and with all mankind...May we never see another war! For in my opinion there never was a good war or a bad peace."

- As the Constitution was being written, the states with more people argued with less populated states about how people would be represented. It was Franklin who proposed the compromise that we have today — the House of Representatives based on population, the Senate having equal numbers for each state.

- For 25 years he published Poor Richard’s Almanack, a collection of bits of information and advice (and the source of the name for the newsletter you hold in your hands). Whenever there was a bit of space, he would print some advice or proverb, often with a bit of humor. (Thomas Jefferson supposedly said that Franklin should have been chosen to write the Declaration of Independence instead of him, but everyone feared Franklin would add too many jokes.) See below for a bit of Franklin wisdom. You may recognize some of these — he borrowed often from the wisdom of other countries, often adding an American twist.

Happy Birthday, Mr. Franklin.

From Poor Richard’s Almanack:

A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush.
Early to bed, early to rise makes a man healthy, wealthy and wise.
A true friend is the best possession.
The Royal Crown cures not the headache.
Don’t throw stones at your neighbors if your own windows are glass.
The worst wheel of the cart makes the most noise.
A false friend and a shadow attend only while the sun shines.
Fish and visitors stink in three days.

expenses. Michael Cohen, Donald Trump’s former lawyer, has admitted that he did not report the hush money (it means what you would guess it means...) he paid to two women to keep them from talking publicly about their affairs with Donald Trump weeks before the 2016 election. If the purpose of these payments was to influence the election, they should have been reported. If their purpose was private (for example, to avoid embarrassing his wife), reporting was not necessary. Michael Cohen says the former; President Trump says the latter.

Meanwhile, Special Prosecutor Robert Mueller has been announcing various outcomes of his investigation into whether there was collusion (secret cooperation) between Russia and the Trump campaign to influence the election. Related to this question is another: did candidate Donald Trump continue to negotiate his private business deals with Russia during the campaign, as his lawyer has claimed he did?

Both of these issues (collusion and private business deals) may or may not have been illegal — you will hear experts on both sides of this issue. But they would both have been seen as big scandals during the election.

As I said: Yikes.
That Crazy English: Thanks to You and ME

Here is a way you can speak more correctly than a lot of very educated native-English-speaking Americans. This is a basic rule of grammar, but I have heard it broken by teachers, religious leaders, university professors, and others who should know better. Here’s the rule:

After a preposition or a verb, use the objective (not the subjective) form of a pronoun.

The common mistake happens when two or more pronouns follow the preposition. People tend to use the subjective pronoun (“She got a letter from Bob and I”) when they should use the objective pronoun (“She got a letter from Bob and me”).

Practice saying these phrases, then practice feeling smug...:

Did you give John and me the right address? (NOT give John and I)

I sent the box to Susan and him. (NOT to Susan and he)

The fruit is from my husband and me. (NOT from my husband and I)

Just between you and me, I think he looks ill. (NOT between you and I)

Tell the teacher and her what you said. (NOT tell the teacher and she)

Ask Lee and me; we know the answer. (NOT ask Lee and I)
UNDERSTANDING WHAT YOU READ,

Read about Martin Luther King, Jr. on page 4. Mark each of these statements as “True” (T) or “False” (F). Make corrections so false statements are true.

1. Martin Luther King, Jr. died at the peak of his popularity.

2. Martin Luther King, Jr. worked to end the Vietnam War.

3. Before the civil rights movement of the 1960s, schools, buses, and restaurants were often segregated by race.

4. King believed that sometimes violence was the only way to make an unfair system more fair.

5. King developed the philosophy of non-violence and civil disobedience from his reading of the Bible.

6. King’s father was also a minister.

7. The “separate but equal” law ensured that children of all races got an equally good education.

8. Sit-ins were effective non-violent approaches to social change in the 1950s.

OBJECTIVE AND SUBJECTIVE PRONOUNS

Read That Crazy English: Thanks to You and ME on page 8. When two pronouns are the subject of a sentence, use the subjective form: She and I are here. If “I” is one of several pronouns, it always comes last (Bill, she, and I are here.) In the sentences below, fill in either I or me, according to these rules:

1. It is cold outside and he and ____________ forgot to wear our sweaters.
2. Would you please bring some sweaters for my husband and ____________?
3. She gave the book to him and _____________.
4. You and ____________ should go to that restaurant more often.

Now replace the names that are in parentheses with the correct pronoun:

5. That happened to (John) ____________ and me, too.
6. (Jane) ____________ and I were friends before (Jane) ____________ and I had fought.
7. Please tell (John) ____________ and (I/me) ____________ how to find your house so we don’t get lost.
WITH A PEN

1) Read New Year’s Eve and New Year’s Day on page 2. Write a description of your home country’s new year celebration. When is it held? Is it a time for families to gather? Are there special foods, music, or ceremonies? Is it a serious holiday? a festive one?

2) Read King, in His Own Words on page 4-5. Some of the vocabulary in these writings is difficult. Pick one segment and translate every word you do not know. Then write, in your own words, what King was trying to say.

3) Read Auld Lang Syne on page 2. Think of a song that is traditionally sung at the new year, or for another holiday in your home country. Write a translation of the words in English. Briefly describe the meaning/history of the song, if you know it.

4) Read Drinking and Driving in the US on page 3. Make a list of any laws that exist in your home country about drinking and driving.

5) Read about Martin Luther King, Jr. on pages 4 and 5. Think of a hero or famous person from your home country. Write a paragraph describing why he/she is famous. Translate into English one short famous thing he/she said or wrote.
